Surnames derived from Placenames

by F. G. EMMISON

(Revised from the text of a lecture given at the Federation of Family History Societies Conference, Chelmsford, 15 September 1985.)

If your surname is, or that of a recent ancestor happens to be, that of a town or village and is not a common placename such as Sutton, Stratford, etc., you may well be entitled to believe that a far more distant forbear lived there or near there four, five or even six centuries ago, when inherited surnames began to appear. If so — and this is the intriguing challenge — your pedigree-tracing could prove much less of a problem than for those with other types of surnames (patronymics, occupatives, nicknames).

But generalisations are not much help to family historians. So I follow with specific cases. Although the illustrations come chiefly from Essex, similar evidence applies equally to nearly all other English counties. The telephone directories for the Southend and Colchester areas, which cover three-fourths of the county, if Metropolitan Essex is excluded, reveal that the following (and probably more) place-surnames are represented by at least half a dozen subscribers:- Ardley, Bardfield, Bentley, Bocking, Boreham, Coxall, Eastwood, Felstead, Holland, Laver, Layer, Ockendon, Shearing, Stebbing, Terling, Utting, Yeldham (some differ slightly from the present-day parish names).

How far backwards can these Essex surnames be traced? The most accessible printed source is the three volumes of Wills at Chelmsford.[1] The answer is that every surname occurs in one, two or all of the books, which cover the period 1858 backwards to about 1450 (the pre-1450 names are very few).

Now for the real objective: going back to medieval times. I now take Feet of Fines for Essex.[2] I will not waste space in explaining the vast class of 'Feet of Fines' in the Public Record Office at Chancery Lane, apart from saying that they are in effect property transactions. The Essex Fines are in print for 1182-1547, but the earliest volume is not relevant to our theme. Again, every surname in the above list is found:- Ardley and Bardfield (vols. 3, 4), Bentley (2), Bocking, Boreham and Coxall (2, 3, 4), Eastwood (4), Felstead (2, 3, 4), Holland (3, 4), Laver (2), Layer (4), Ockendon and Shearing (2), Stebbing, Terling and Utting (Outyng) (2, 4), Yeldham (4).

In my initial sentence I used 'near', because migration before Tudor times was mainly, though by no means only, within a radius of a dozen or fewer miles. Surnames derived from places were given because the individual lived there or having moved to another parish became known by the place whence he came. (These remarks of course are much condensed.) As nearly all medieval records were in Latin, his name may appear as 'de' (which means either of or from) sandwiched between his christian name and the placename.

So far I have referred only to surnames originating in towns or villages. But, going down the topographical scale, the same remarks obtain with hamlets, manors, farms, houses, and even spotnames — surnames derived from the last, often preceded by 'atte' (at the). My maternal ancestors — the Fields — were farmers, millers, yeomen and small gentry living from the 13th to the 19th century within a small area of West Hertfordshire, the earliest occurring as 'atte field'.[3] The surname Overal (the noun for a garment does not appear until about 1800) was from living at or near the Over (Upper) Hall; a few years ago I surprised an Essex chief librarian of that name with my erudite knowledge! Of Essex hamlets represented by surnames still surviving locally, Wills at Chelmsford shows, for example, Chatley, Plaistow and Marden. Homestead, formerly a not uncommon name in North Essex is more likely to have come from Olmstead (a hamlet in Helions Bumpstead) than from a dwelling. The much more common surname Bickner is almost certainly from the hamlet with the distinctive name of Bicknacre.

An even larger number of surnames have come down to us from the name of a farm or house. For these, I need go no farther than the fat volume The Place-Names of Essex. Many of the manorhouses or farmhouses cited, to use the regular phrase, now bear a name 'probably associated [in medieval times] with the family of . . .' I extract a few example of the hundreds of Essex housenames:-

Parish of Broomfield. Chobbings Farm 'is probably associated with the family of Ranulph Chopyn of Writtle (1340, Feet of Fines). In Wills at Chelmsford the surname is common, and the telephone directory lists no less than 27 Choppins, Choppings and Choppens.

Danbury. Frettons: John Fretoun (1388, Feet of Fines), and 4 Frettons in the directory, 3 of them at Cold Norton and Springfield, so some of the family have apparently lived locally for centuries. Rumbold's Farm: John Rombold (1327, Subsidy Roll), and still many Rumbolds and Rumbles living in the neighbourhood.

Boreham. Turtles Farm: Richard Thorkild (1319, Subsidy Roll), now represented by 3 Turtles and 1 Turtell.

Great Baddow. Phillows Farm: William Vys de Lu (1248, Assize Roll); the directory has 4 with the unusual name of Philo.

Now briefly for other counties. Look at the long series of volumes issued by the British Record Society in the form of one-line index entries to many thousands of wills proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury (the province to the south of the Trent.[4]) The P.C.C. wills are those mainly of the gentry and more substantial yeomen and tradesmen and of testators with land in more than one diocese. Then look at the runs of publications of the county record or archaeological society, most of which have individual (or better, general) indexes of personal names, and of course P.R.O. and B.L. publications of records; all these are, or should be, available in every good public library and local record offices.

You will of course realise that many names of parishes, etc., occur in more than one county. Check with a good gazetteer. If the name is represented (say) only in Devon and Norfolk and you know that (say) your grandparents were born in (say) Suffolk, you may perhaps forget about Devon; but obviously there are various items to check if the placename occurs in several counties. Do not overlook the ways in which the spelling of a placename and its probable derived surname have taken different courses through the centuries — not surprising when we remember that spelling was most erratic and often not fixed until about 1800 or even later. The present-day surname may perpetuate that of a much older spelling of the place. Essex and Hertfordshire cases include, for example, Aunger for Ongar, Owting, Utting and Utten for Ulting, and Sapsberg and Sapswood for Sawbridgeworth (-worth has often been corrupted to -wood or -ford). But the vagaries of spelling result in confusion between names with similar pronunciations, e.g. in Essex, Heybridge and Abridge, Hockley and Oakley.

Many possessors of unique place-surnames are known to feel some loyalty to the county of their forebears. Perhaps I may be allowed to say that this led me recently to offer a little financial help towards the publication of Hertfordshire wills. County loyalty evinces itself in various ways besides cricket and is an influential factor in local fund-raising. Yet, strangely enough, we have no word for county loyalty corresponding to patriotism. I presume to coin it. Why not call it 'comitatism' (from Latin comitatus, county)? If readers happen to like it, will they please publicise it!

Domesday

ANNIVERSARY

The Exhibition

Further to the item in our September 1985 issue (p. 390), we now have more news of the special exhibition being staged in five galleries of the original Public Record Office Building in Chancery Lane, London, from 3rd April to 30th September this year, the 900th anniversary of the making of Domesday Book. By all accounts it should make a fascinating day's visit, involving as it will the use of models, audio-visual aids, microcomputers, artefacts, and even modern crafts demonstrating parchment-making and calligraphy. Not only Domesday Book proper but all the surviving satellites and draft returns will be displayed along with a tableau of the 16th century Exchequer office showing them in use as works of reference. Visitors will be led into the galleries along the pedigree of a living lord who can trace his family back to the pages of Domesday — a feat which over 200 other family historians have also attempted in a project organised by the P.R.O., to which a halt was called last December. In the final gallery visitors will be able to walk over an aerial photograph of the City of Lincoln to trace its development from Norman times through manuscripts and artists' impressions. The entrance fee is to be £2.50, but there will be half-price reductions for pensioners, the unemployed and pre-arranged parties.

PREFACE.

My justification for writing this book is my familiarity with the rolls which it describes. The early Curia Regis Rolls became my stock work in the Public Record Office on 20 December, 1910; and so, except for intervals, some of them rather long, due to war, the pressure of more urgent business and other normal incidents of Civil Service, I have worked daily on these records for more than thirty-four years.

Mr. A. E. Stamp, then Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, first suggested to me that my lengthy occupation with these rolls might justify a book about them. He was on the Council of the Selden Society at the time; and in March, 1937, I was authorised by its Secretary to begin this work. I am deeply grateful for the encouragement and for the wise and practical help that Mr. Stamp was always ready to give me.

My first intention was to confine myself to the reign of king John. When, however, I began to copy the rolls of Henry III, I found many cases, besides those which are in Bracton's Note Book, which either illustrate existing procedure or show the lines of its development; and I decided to extend the date to A.D. 1230, the year I had reached in my work at the Record Office when the text of this volume was approaching completion. As the minority of Henry III had ended and changes in procedure were already becoming less numerous, this date proved to be a convenient terminus ad quem. Notwithstanding this extension, the reign of king John is substantially the period with which I have dealt.

The following pages are not intended to be a full statement of the law of the period. The rolls on which they are based are the best but not the only authority for such a statement, which would call for intense study and frequent reference to other sources. They are merely an attempt to state with as much fullness and with as logical an arrangement as possible the principles which seem to emerge from the rolls, and to illustrate those principles from cases which occur in them. As transcripts of all these rolls have either been printed in full in the volumes of the series of Curia Regis Rolls which have already been published or will, it is hoped, be printed in future volumes, it did not seem necessary to increase the size of this book by giving them in the original Latin.

I am not very apologetic for occasional repetitions which, for two reasons, are almost inevitable. The first reason is that the same entry in the rolls often affords the best illustration of totally different points. The second is that the same thing has frequently to be said in two connexions; to take a simple example, amercements imposed on jurors find a natural place in the chapter dealing with each of these subjects. Repetition can, in fact, only be avoided by an elaborate system of cross-references, which may be either neglected or burdensome.

This book has been read in proof by my colleague, Mr. L. C. Hector, who has made numerous suggestions, of which I have used a very large proportion. I am greatly indebted to Mr. Stuart Moore for his unfailing encouragement, and to Professor Plucknett for his careful scrutiny of the proof sheets. My wife has made my task much easier by typing more than half the text, although she was at the time crippled by an accident. A last word of thanks is due to the printers, on whom the times in which we are living must have imposed great difficulties, of which they seldom made me aware.

the wage [illegible] the duel was summoned to Westminster. The prior then offered to prove by Siward or Thomas de Sudham that they were present when he sought a view of the land and had it not, and also when false judgment was made against him. Siward and Thomas offered themselves against William and against the county. William came and said that Siward and Thomas were hired champions, and he asked the court to consider that the duel was waged without demur in the county court. The prior said that this was not so, because he was compelled to wage the duel; and at the last William de Charnelles acknowledged that a view was awarded the prior in the county but was not made, because the prior did not appear. A day for judgment was given at Winchester on Tuesday after Ascension; the county was to send twelve knights to hear judgment, and the sheriff was to be there in person. The words Loquendum cum rege are in the margin; and one may infer from this that the court looked gravely on this alleged perversion of justice in the county.

In a later entry relating to Middlesex [1] a writ of right in the county court also led to a duel; but matters went further, for, after wager, the county decided that the duel should take place and that the champions should come armed to another meeting of the county. At the end of the entry a suspicion creeps in that the court may not have acted correctly; for because the knights feared that they had made a bad record, two of them, Richard de Dol and John Bocointe (both of whom were frequent attendants at Westminster either as jurors or litigants, and probably had acquired some legal knowledge), offered a mark to the king. As a matter of fact the duel was never fought, for an agreement between the principal parties is recorded on the same membrane.

On another occasion [2] the prior of Ware, a litigant in the distant county of Warwickshire, complained to the justices that, although a duel had been waged, the county court refused to allow it. It would appear that at this time the county courts were reluctant to allow the writ of right to be followed by a duel, even though this was a normal defence and it was within their competence to award it.

A writ of right in the county court is also mentioned in a case relating to Pooty Pools in Roxwell, Essex, in Michaelmas term, 1206.[3] One of the parties stated that he made good his claim to the land by a writ of right to the county; and the other said that he was never put to plead there nor had he a summons. The sheriff was ordered to send four knights who were present at the judgment with the record on the octaves of Hilary next. On that occasion only one knight appeared,[1] and there was a postponement to the next term. Some time before that, however, the parties thought it best [illegible] agree and made a final concord.[2]

The grand assise (like the possessory assises) was a matter for Westminster; and if the defendants replied to a writ of right in the county court by putting themselves on that assise, the parties left the county and went to Westminster.[3] This seems to have been the case with Maud and Agnes, daughters of Norman,[4] who appear to have got into difficulties because the clerk who wrote out their writ of peace did not mention the plaintiff's wife, whose name appeared in the original writs. In the county they had put themselves on the grand assise and on the curia, that is to say, the justices at Westminster. They offered half a mark to have their assise notwithstanding the clerk's error; and a day was given them. But even so these ladies had not got to the end of their troubles; it was afterwards discovered that each of them had a husband, whom they were sternly ordered to produce as they wished to save their tenement.

One instance has already been given of the county being called upon to review proceedings in a private court.[5] A later case, in the course of which this procedure was said to be part of the custom of the land, has numerous points of interest.

In Easter term, 1220,[6] four knights of Somerset were sent with the record of a plea in the county between Thomas de Albo Monasterio and William de Thorn, who had waged a duel about two hides of land in Esse (which may perhaps be Ashbrittle). Thomas took a writ of right to William Briwer. At length when the default of William's court had been proved, according to the custom of the land Thomas came to the county and William de Thorn was summoned. At length, after a view of the land had been sought and after all essoins, they both appeared. Thomas claimed as of right, since the land descended to him from his mother Emma, and put forward his champion; William denied his claim and also put forward his champion; and in such manner was a duel waged. Thomas acknowledged that the record was true. William agreed with it in part; but the knights had forgotten that, both before duel was waged and on that day, he kept saying that Thomas had an elder brother; and still he said it; and to prove that he said it, he produced two men who saw the brother in lay clothing, namely a blue cape and a green tunic, on the day when the duel was waged.

The knights said that they had not forgotten this, because it was

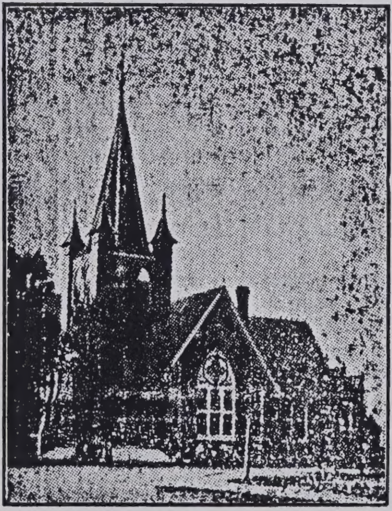
Murray Methodist Church



In 1839 in the residence of Rev. Isaiah P. Pool in Pooltown was organized the first Methodist church in this city. This was five years before the division of Episcopal Methodism into northern and southern organizations. Rev. Boswell was the first pastor.

This organization did not thrive, owing to the question of slavery which agitated the mind of all the people in those days. The organization kept together sufficiently, however, to have preaching on up until the war between the states.

In 1879 the church was reorganized with Rev. B. B. Risenhoover as pastor and with thirteen members. After this organization was effected the church began its organization in earnest. A Sunday School was at once organized, meeting in the court house, with an enrollment of over one hundred pupils. Judge J. R. Schroader was its first superintendent.

Very soon this growing band of Methodists secured a lot and built a commodious frame building on the corner of the court square at South Curd street. The building cost three thousand dollars. These were great days for Murray Methodists, so with zeal for God's cause the church went forward to battle and to conquer, and grow in strength and members till a new and larger church was demanded. This was accomplished at a cost of ten thousand dollars and is the present home of the church, although numerous additions and improvements have been made. During the pastorate of Rev. J. A. Hassell in 1915 a two-story annex with basement was built at a cost of seven thousand dollars. This annex houses the kitchen and dining room and additional class rooms.

The church is well organized, having a Sunday School, Woman's Missionary Society, Wesley Brotherhood, Board of Christian Education, Senior League, Hi-League and three departments of children's work. The Sunday School has an enrollment of five hundred.

The following have served as Sunday School superintendents during the history of the organization: J. R. Schroader, Eldridge Banks, Wilson Weathers, B. F. Schroader, Robert Whitnell, William Fizer, Nat Ryan, E. P. Phillips, Prof. Throop, A. J. Wells, J. G. Glasgow, R. T. Wells, J. D. Sexton and C. A. Hale, the present superintendent.

And the following have pastored the church since its founding: Revs. B. B. Risenhoover, J. R. Hardin, G. W. Evans, W. J. McCoy, E. B. Graham, W. J. Carlton, E. H. Stewart, J. H. Cole, C. C. Bell, R. H. Pigue, T. P. Clark, J. H. Felts, L. D. Hamilton, E. S. Harris, Cleonth Brooks, M. F. Leak, P. B. Jefferson, W. A. Russell, J. M. Pickens, J. A. Hassell, W. H. Brooks, A. J. Meadors, J. W. Murray Methodist Church

In 1848 in the residence of Rev. Isaiah P. Pool the Fountain was organized the first Methodist church in this city. This was five years before the division of Episcopal Methodism into northern and southern organizations. Rev. Howell was the first pastor.

This organization did not thrive, owing to the question of slavery which agitated the mind of all the people in those days. The organ-

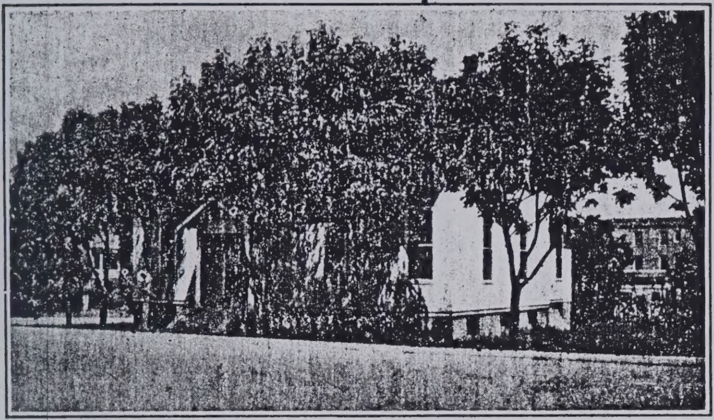
Brief Historical Sketch of the Murray Church of Christ



(Prepared by J. B. Brown, Maurice C. Bucy and Cecil H. Thurmond.)

Time division in the church at Murray, over innovations, took place about the year of 1899. In 1900, or 1901, brother J. R. Hill got together a small band of disciples, who met from house to house to keep house for the Lord in his appointed way.

This little band consisted of N. T. Hale, S. F. Holcomb, L. D. Curd, A. D. Thompson, Mrs. W. P. Morrison and Maurice Bucy A few others attended occasionally. We had our first meeting in the Opera House. Later we rented a room in the old hotel building, now known as the First National Bank Building. At this place we met for quite a while.

I was quite a young man at that time and disliked to suggest to the older ones. I did insist however, that we secure the services of a good man for a series of meetings. My suggestions met with such little encouragement, that we finally disbanded for about seven years; some of us going to Union Grove and Green Plains, congregations meeting a few miles out of Murray, and worshipped with the brethern at these places. Brethern Hale and Hill passed away during this time. And brother A. D. Thompson was out of the city for quite a while, in a hospital for treatment, as his health had given away.

Later, with the help and encouragement of Hazel, Union Grove and Green Plains, we secured the services of J. A. Harding of Bowling Green, Ky. to conduct a meeting under a large tent pitched in the Court House Yard. Leon Harding, his son, conducted the song services. The remainder of the history of the work can be found in the church directory there- Maurice C. Bucy, Detroit, Michigan.

As a result of a meeting held in the summer of 1909, in which J. A. Harding did the preaching, assisted by Leon, the congregation at this place was established, consisting of thirteen members.

The next meeting held for the congregation was in November of the same year, with M. H. Northcross as the evangelist, and in the year 1910 J. A. Harding was called back for his second meeting.

The annual protracted meeting for the year 1911 was conducted in July by William M. Ethridge, resulting in four additions to the church, these being the first since its establishment. And then in the year 1912, Chas. Taylor, then a boy was called to assist the church in a series of meetings, resulting in thirty-three additions to the church.

About this time a lot was purchased on which a house of worship was erected. Prior to this time the church met for worship in the Court House and other places where arrangements could be made.

The first meeting conducted in the new house, the services of Chas. Taylor was again secured who was assisted by W. M. Etheridge, the local minister, resulting in twenty souls being added to the local body. This was in the year 1913, and the following year, C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas, was called for a meeting, in which there were sixteen others added to the church.

On the fourth Lord's day in January, 1915 the following were set apart as elders of this congregation: Lucious D. Curd, Hawkins Valentine, R. A. Starks and J. B. Brown. And the following were set apart as deacons: Maurice C. Bucy and Charlie Graham.

Other brethern who have assisted the church in protracted efforts are as follows: C. M. Pullias (three meetings), A. B. Barret, T. B. Larimore, John T. Smith, E. A. Elam, G. C. Brewer, T. Q. Martin, G. A. Dunn Sr., Horace W. Busby and Chas F. Hardin. During these meetings many were added to the local congregation, and the church greatly strengthened and edified.

Preaching brethern who have assisted the church as located ministers, as follows: William Etheridge, T. B. Thompson, L. L. Brigance, Coleman Overby, B. L. Douthitt, Alonzo Williams, Chas. F. Hardin, E. H. Smith and C. P. Poole

In the year 1920 the following were set apart as elders to labor with those previously appointed: Maurice C. Bucy and Chas. E. Frazier. Also, deacons appointed at the same time, viz: W. E. Suiter, Adolphus Bucy and Cecil H. Thurmond. And in the year 1926 E. H. Smith was added to the eldership, and Rexford Canon was added as deacon.

Through a united effort of practically every church of Christ in Calloway county a move was sponsored in the year of 1922 for a protracted effort whereby all the congregations might unite in the undertaking, and Murray was selected as the most suitable and convenient place for the meeting. A. B. Barrett was chosen as the evangelist, and A. B. Reavis as the song leader to assist in the efforts, and the meeting began the 3rd. Sunday in June. This undertaking proved to be a splendid success, in that a number were added to the Murray church, and Colemlan Overby employed as county evangelist, with $1000.00 raised for his support. His work began in August that year and continued for about eighteen months, with meetings conducted in many localities and a number of congregations established as a result

Alonzo Williams was the sponsor of a "Bible Lecture Week" at the church in January 1926, with the following brethern appearing on the program: Alonzo Williams, E. H. Smith, W. E. Morgan, I. B. Bradley, Chas. Taylor, L. E. Jones, E. L. Whitaker, I. A. Douthitt, C. B. Douthitt, H. C. Shoulders and H. L. Calhoun.

Since the organization of the church many have died and also many moved away; yet the church has had a steady growth numerically, an dat present, has a membership of near two hundred.

The work of the church moves along in a splendid way with J. B. Brown, E. H. Smith and R. A. Starks serving as elders, and Chas. Graham, Cecil H. Thurmond and Rexford Canon as deacons. E. H. Smith and Chas. P. Poole alternating, preaching full time, their "work of faith and labor of love" being highly appreciated by the entire membership.

(The above was written for publication in the "Primitive Christian" in the early fall of the year 1928.)

Since the fall of 1928, the following ministers have assisted the church in protracted meetings: Geo. A. Klingman, I. A. Douthitt and R. R. Brooks. And R. R. Brooks was called to assist the church as local minister in the year 1930, and arrived to begin his labors the first Lord's day in December. By reason of his efficient services the church has continued to prosper both in numbers and in good works. He was called upon to do the preaching in the annual protracted meeting in the fall of 1931 and this meeting proved one of the most successful ones in the history of the church, resulting in a number being added to the church. At his instance a special meeting was followed up, beginning on the first Sunday in December, with the following ministers preaching: I. A. Douthitt, Fred W. Chunn, Jewel Norman, David Thompson, J. S. Jones, W. E. Morgan, J. B. Hardeman, L. H. Pogue, E. H. Smith and R. R. Brooks. This was a most interesting meeting, and an inspiration to the church and community. The church membership now numbers well above two hundred.

History of New Concord

By Chas. A. McCuiston

We have no record further back than 1828, but old folks tell us that the first store that was put up here was where the New Providence and Murray roads now fork, and this store was built in 1819; but we have no date on it further back than 1828. At that time this country was inhabited mostly by the Stubblefield family.

Mrs. A. J. (Mitt) Stubblefield has some old letters written to this place dated October 8, 1828, from James Barnett, Leakville, Rockingham County, North Carolina, to Robert C. Stubblefield, Humility, Calloway County, Ky. That was the name of this place at that time. The records show that about 1831 the name was changed to New Concord, there being another Concord in the eastern part of Kentucky, and between 1831 and 1835 they added the word "New" to it, making it New Concord.

The first person buried in the New Concord cemetery, according to the old people's memory, was Jackie Stubblefield. The oldest marked tombstone in this graveyard is Jas. Barnett, who died September 22, 1835. From an old letter written September 19, 1837, tobacco at that time was selling from 3 to 5 cents per pound. In the year 1848 P. M. Rowlett established a tobacco manufacturing plant. The first two brands of tobacco made were named "48" and "Old Dominion. Several years later his son, Jeff, became a partner. His father was getting old, so Jeff became manager in 1889. His father died, so Jeff continued on with the factory and in 1903 he moved it to Murray and is still making those two old famous brands. Back in the 50's and 60's the tobacco business came to be of great interest in this community.

In 1861 the Civil War broke out, and the United States put a revenue on tobacco, so a great many people did not think it was right, and a lot of them began smuggling tobacco. It would now be called bootlegging. It put this factory to the bad.

In the 70's Pink Stilley founded a wagon shop here which made wagons and sold them to the people of the county. They worked 15 or 20 men in this shop and sold the wagons for $150. This town had grown to be about 150 inhabitants. It had two drug stores, two dry goods stores, one saloon, one hotel, one church, a Masonic Lodge, two tobacco factories and two doctors—Dr. Bowling and Dr. Lynch, and old Dr. Lynch decided he wanted to eat a piece of dog meat. So he decided to kill a dog, cook it and give a big dog dinner. He asked in his neighbors and friends. Everything that was cooked had some of that dog in it. Some would not eat any dog; but you see they got some dog anyway.

At one time the wealth of Calloway county was in and around New Concord. Some of the biggest men this county ever had were born and reared in New Concord. The only millionaire the county ever produced was born in New Concord.

About 1845 the Masons of this community bought a large bell weighing about 150 pounds from a steamboat which sank in the Tennessee river near here. This bell was used on the Masonic building, and the old Union church which was the same building. It is now used by the New Concord high school.

In 1919 the New Concord Milling Company was established here by A. G. Smith. It operated here for six years but it got too big for this place and Murray did not have a flour mill, so it was moved there in 1925.

At the present time this town has about 100 population. It has an A grade four year high school, two stores, one blacksmith shop, one garage, one church, one doctor and a postoffice.

This is a true history of New Concord and the community according to the best information and knowledge I have of it. I have lived in this little city for the past forty years.

Ewing M. Farmer

Mr. Ewing M. Farmer one of the oldest and most prominent tobacco dealers in Calloway County was born April 26, 1862, on a farm two and one-half miles west of Murray, and it is interesting to know that Mr. Farmer today owns the farm where he was born and spent his youth. At the age of eighteen he joined his oldest brother, J. W. Farmer, in a tobacco business known as the J. W. Farmer Tobacco Company. This organization was one of the pioneer tobacco concerns in the history of the county. The old factory used in this business is still standing on the Ewing Farmer farm. In 1885 he formed a partnership with his youngest brother, C. E. Farmer, as independent tobacco buyers, and this business continued until 1907. When the Association business in handling association tobacco. In 1909 he was elected association salesman for the entire Western District with offices in Paducah. He retained this position for four years, at the end of which time he accepted a prizing contract with the United States Tobacco Co., his brother, C. E. Farmer, becoming a partner. The style of this firm was E. M. Farmer & Co., and has remained such to the present day.

Mr. Farmer has been a representative dealer of the United States Tobacco Company for the past sixteen years, completing a period of over half a century in marketing tobacco, the most outstanding commodity produced in the Jackson Purchase.

As a citizen Ewing M. Farmer measures up to the highest and most exacting standards. He has done much to improve conditions in Calloway County, and he is accepted as an excellent example of native Kentuckians whose stock is rooted in the traditions of the pioneer days of the great commonwealth.

Mr. Farmer is a son of Carroll and Mary Lawrence Farmer, both deceased. On Jan. 10, 1884, he was married to Miss Fidelia Brinn, and they are the parents of J. K. Farmer, C. C. Farmer, John Farmer, A. C. Farmer, Mrs. Herschel Corn and Mrs. A. B. Austin, all residing in Murray. He is a member of the Methodist church and a democrat.

Prof. M. O. Wrather

The above is a likeness of Calloway County's Superintendent of Schools, he having been elected to this highly important position in June of 1930.

Prof. Wrather was born in Calloway county on the 19th day of August, 1900, and is a son of Esq. J. O. Wrather and Mrs. Altie Wrather, both residing on their farm, southwest of Murray. At an early age Prof. Wrather began fitting himself for a life of educational work. His first schooling was at South Howard, this county, later on at Murray High School, Bowling Green State Teachers College, Murray State Teachers College (where he obtained a B. S. degree) and a graduate student of Peabody College in the year 1928. He was principal of the Hazel High School four years, principal of New Concord High School one year, principal of Lynn Grove High School two years. His first teaching experience was at Kelly, a rural school in this county, and taught in the Lynn Grove school two years before his appointment as principal of that school. He was vice president of the First District Educational Associational Association in 1930, and was recently selected as secretary of that well known organization of educators. On August 17, 1923, he was united in marriage to Miss Lillie Grogan, of this county. He is a member of the Methodist church and a Democrat.

In the selection of Prof. M. O. Wrather as superintendent of Calloway County Schools, the County School Board made no mistake. He is popular with both teachers and patrons, and is giving his undivided time and attention to the schools of the county. The schools of Calloway County are reported to be in excellent shape, and if qualification, coupled with a burning desire to see the boys and girls of this community well educated have anything to do with the requirements of the office he holds, the County School Board will do well to retain the services of Prof. Wrather as long as possible.

Personally he is a pleasant, accommodating gentleman, and as an educator stands at the very top of the profession.

County Officials

The first sheriff of Calloway County was W. B. Duncan, before 1851 they were elected in the order named, as follows: Isaih Kirby, N. D. Gore, Arthur H. Davis, Andrew Bell, J. Hodges, N. Copeland, John A. Martin, B. Wells, George Tucker, Wm. Jones, John Copeland, Reuben E. Rowland, Samuel Watson, Wm. Craddock, Asaph Jetton.

Since 1851 they were as follows: George P. Linn, C. A. Duncan, Richard Nuckollus, H. P. Utterback, R. F. Mix, N. C. Ryan, J. H. Swift, Wm. Ryan, Isaac Keys, J. W. Fergeson, L. C. Linn, W. S. Bourland, W. B. Keys, R. B. Holland, S. H. Dees. Up to this time the term of office was two years, and if reelected the law allowed them to succeed themselves Since 1886 the sheriffs have served in the order named: C. H. Stewart, J. M. Radford, J. B. Hay, J. M. Radford, L. W. Holland, J. A. Edwards, C. L. Jordan, W. A Patterson, J D. Houston, Frank Pool, J. Robertson, C. W. Drinkard, incumbent. It is impossible to give dates on account of loss of records.

County Clerks

Calloway's first county court clerk was Wm. Curd, followed by Jeremiah C. Wilkins, Edmund H. Curd, P. M. Ellison, John B. England, R. E. Beckham, L. Boyd, J. M. Williams. Since 1882 they have been as follows: Galen Miller, J. H. Keys, two terms; J. N. Williams, R. H. Falwell, C. H. Broach, R. M. Phillips, George Parker, and Mrs. Mary Neale, the incumbent, serving her second term.

County Judges

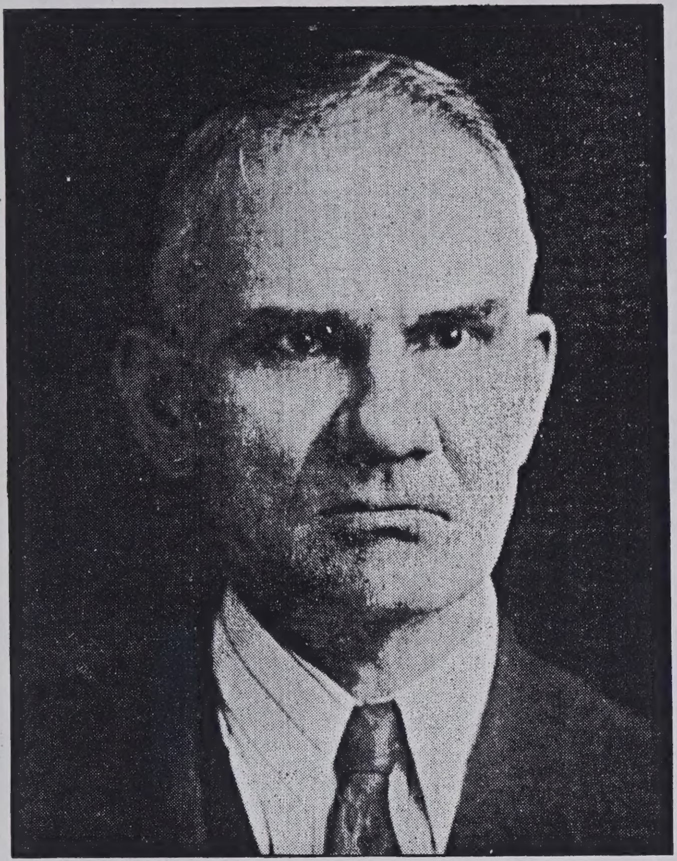
Elisha Hardy was Calloway's first county judge. He was followed by T. M. Jones, James McKnight, P. M. Ellison, G. C. Oury, W. B. Keys. Since 1882 they have served as follows: R. H. Hamlin, A. C. Fergeson, C. H. Stewart, G. M. Cutchins, two terms; A. J. G. Wells, Tom W. Patterson, who was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Judge Wells, who resigned. Mr. Patterson was then elected for a full term. Following Judge Patterson came L. A. L. Langston, E. P. Phillips, L. A. L. Langston, T. R. Jones, and C. A. Hale, incumbent.

County Attorneys

There may have been county attorneys previous to the election of T. P. Cook, but it is impossible to trace them further back. Following Judge Cook came G. C. Diuguid, G. C. Oury (who died and J. R. Schroader was appointed to fill out the term) G. C. Diuguid, J. H. Coleman, Conn Linn, two terms; N. B. Barnett, Clay Ervin, N. B. Barnett, I. W. Keys, (whose unexpired term was filled by Joe Lancaster), R. H. Hood, T. W. Crawford, and R. H. Hood, the incumbent.

Circuit Clerks

Joe Callaway, Edmund Curd, Jeremiah C. Wilkins, Edmund Curd, Paris M. Ellison, were circuit court clerks of Calloway county previous



M. D. Holton

M. Diltz Holton was born at Mount Sterling, Ky., October 27, 1869, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Holton, deceased. His education was acquired from the public schools of Moscow, Ohio, Germantown and Murray, Ky. Leaving school at the age of sixteen he was employed on his father's farm near Paducah until 1888. In this year he became shipping clerk for a tobacco warehouse at Paducah, and remained with that firm for two years, leaving it to go with a dairy and creamery concern at Paducah, and then, in 1892, he went to Amarillo, Texas, when it was a cow town and worked in a general store for a year. In 1894 he came to Murray and was admitted to the bar, having been studying law during his leisure hours for some time. For a year he was engaged in the practice of his profession, but did not find in it any more than he had in his former occupations. His talents leading to insurance he took up that line of work and has followed it exclusively for many years, at the present time being one of the leading life insurance agents of Kentucky.

On January 25, 1899, Mr. Holton was married to Miss Julia Kelly Hamlin, a daughter of Judge R. F. and Laura Hamlin, both of whom are deceased. He was at one time county judge of Calloway and early in life was a prominent educator.

Mr. and Mrs. Holton are the parents of four daughters, namely, Mrs. Hattie McConnell, wife of a Presbyterian minister and residing in Fort Worth, Texas; Mrs. Roberta Sudhoff, wife of a prominent Cincinnati merchant; Miss Anna Diltz Holton, music instructor, and Miss Juliet Holton, student in Murray State Teachers College.

Diltz Holton is a prominent and successful insurance man, but finds time to do his bit in everything that redounds to the interest of his community and his fellowman. He takes the time to do the things that should be done, whether he has the time to spare or not, and without a cent of compensation at that. Possessing as he does liberal views and a public spirit, he has been able to give much to Murray and has quickened into intense activity a local pride that is having remarkable results.

Murray Has Fine Water and Lights

Murray has one of the best water and light plants in the State of Kentucky, owned and controlled by the Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Company. This company purchased the plant on May 11, 1926, from the city of Murray, and at once set about to give the people service, spending thousands and thousands of dollars to that end. New power plants, new wells and new equipment throughout were installed, in fact, the system as a whole was made modern and up-to-date. While our current comes direct from the power plant at Mayfield, the plant here is in readiness at all times to handle breakdowns and cases of emergency, should they occur. Murray is on a loop line which starts at Mayfield, thence here, to Paris, Martin, McKenzie, Fulton, and Back to Mayfield, supplying also the many smaller towns along the line as well as private homes.

Water is supplied from three deep wells, and is pure and healthful.

In disposing of the water and light plant by the city of Murray, the property fell into the hands of a company which renders real service. The Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Company is one of the best in the country, and under their management and control our city will always have satisfactory lights and water.

Mr. Robert Carney is the local manager, while Mr. Claud Orr, with headquarters at Mayfield, is the district manager.

These gentelmen seek the confidence and good will of the public through the only means they know of gaining it—dependable service at fair rates.

Charter Members of Murray M. E. Church

Following are the charter members of the Murray Methodist church when it was organized in 1879:

Mrs. Carrie McCarthy, Mrs. Josie Banks, Mrs. Mattie Watters Ligon, John J. Waters, Mrs. Susan C. Waters, Mrs. Dyar Schroader, John Schroader, John Whitnell, Mrs. Martha Whitnell, Mrs. Josie Holt, Rev. Mac Pool, Mrs. Lenora Pool, Wilson Wheathers.

Mrs. Josie Banks and Mrs. Mattie Waters Ligon are the only survivors at this time. January 5, 1932.

Two Good Clubs

Murray has the Rotary and Exchange clubs. Both have very large memberships and regular meetings are held each week. During the past few years these organizations have done much for the city and county, and they stand ready at all times to further any movement that will help the county and the citizens thereof. When Rotarians and Exchangeites get behind a movement that movement always goes over the top.

WILL OF EDWARD RAGSDALE, SENR., Deceased

In the name of God amen, I Edward Ragsdale, Senr. of the County of Lunenburg through the mercies of God being in perfect sence and memory. I do constitute this my last will and testament and desire it may be received as such. Imprimis, first and principally I most humbly bequeath my soul to Almighty God my maker beseeching his most gracious acceptance of it through the merits of my compassionate Redeemer Jesus Christ. Item I give my body to the ground from whence it was taken in full assurance of its resurrection from thence at the last day as to my burial I desire it may be decent at the discretaion of my Executors hereafter named and as to my Temperal estate it hath pleased God to belss me with my will and desire is it may be disposed and divided in manner and form following.

Item, I give and bequeath to my son Edward Ragsdale a part of my land whereon I now live and to be divided as follows beginning at his line and the Rocky Branch, thence up the said branch, the east fork to Gee's line at the corner, all the land to the East side of the said branch and a strait line to be run from the head of the said branch to Gee's corner. 10 Jul 1780

Item, I give and bequeath to Edward and Martha Pettypool one negro girl named Patience to be divided agreeable to a Deed of gift recorded in Lunenburg County Court.

Children
William^4
(William^3,
William^2,
William)

Item, I give and bequeath to my Daughter Ann Neblett and her heirs one Negro girl named Lucy.

Item, my Will and desire is that the other part of my land be equally divided between my sons William, John, Baylor, and Joshua to be divided between them at their mother's discretion, and my negroes, Sam, Jack, Phebe, Daniel and Harry with their increase and all my other estate (not before given), to be equally divided between my sons, Edward, William, John, Baylor, and Joshua and my daughters, Elizabeth, Lathy and Jemima at the decease of their mother.

I lend to my wife Milly Ragsdale during her life or widowhood my whole estate real and personal for support of her and my children but if she should marry I then lend her one child's part during her life and lastly I nominate and appoint my two sons Edward and William my whole and sole Executors tothis my last Will and Testament thereby revoking and making void all former wills.

I do hereby publish and declare this to by my last Will and Testament in Witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and seal this seventeenth day of December one thousand seven hundred and seventy-nine.

/s/ Ed. Ragsdale (Seal)

In Presence of Joshua Ragsdale, John Ragsdale, Lettetia Ragsdale

Dear Dr Hartshough,

Thank you for your letter of 5 March and the cheque for $110.00, which I will also ask our Hon. Treasurer to acknowledge.

I have now made all the searches offered in my letter of 6 Feb., with the following results:-

1. The entire indexes to Vols. 5 to 12 of the future publication of Essex Wills, 1558-1603. Despite their containing approximately 80,000 personal name references, I am very sorry to tell you that there is only one reference to the name in which you are interested. It occurs in Vol. 8, no. 452. The Society having decided to repeat in Vol. 4 onwards (i.e. the volumes now being published by the Essex Record Office) any references to Wills proved in two courts independently, one such Will proved by the Commissary Court and also in that of the Archdeacon of Essex had been printed in Vol. 1, no.33; which of course you had already seen in an American library. I note any differences, even minor variants of spelling - such variants, I see from your own letters, are of considerable interest to you. In Vol. 8 Edward PETYPOLL is recorded as one of the witnesses instead of PYTEPOLL as it appears in Vol. 1. (Will of Joan HYCH (not HICHE as in Vol. 1) of Burnham, 15 Nov. 1560.)
   I assume you already have the PYTPOOLE referenees in Vol. 2 (1566?)
   My searches have covered the large number of variants, Pet-, Pit-,Pot-, Put-, Pyt-, P-d, etc.
2. Feet of Fines, 1547-1570. No refs.
3. PCC Wills, 1558-1603. No refs. **
4. Various other big indexes in my study. These have included the General Indexes to Trans. Essex Archl.Soc. and to Essex Review, in all, a vast corpus of materia
   But I also have the 2 vols. of Calendar of Assize Records: Essex Indictments, Eliz. ' James (purchased for £95!). That for James, no.644 (page 100) is as follows: John Uphavering of Barking, husbandman, indicted for murder. By an inquisition held at Barking, 14 Mar.1611, before the coroner, on the body of Thomas Pricklove. [The jurors' names included 'John POTYPOOLE'.] Jury found that on 8 Mar. at Barking Uphavering attacked Pricklove with a blow, from which he died on 13 Mar. Guilty of homicide; allowed clergy [i.e. he read the set passage from a book by which he was able to allege he was a 'clerk'].
   No.1181 (page 184). George Newbolt labourer, John Harrison labourer, and John PETTIEPOOLE carpenter, of Barking, indicted for assault. 'On 15 Sept.1616 at Barking they assaulted John Wheatelye. Confessed; Newbolt fined£2; the others 5s. each'.
   No.1611 (page 254). List of Gaol prisoners [in Colchester Castle] submitted to Assize on 11 March 1622. Included John PETTYPOOLE.

 Sorry, I omitted to copy from my notes. POTPOLE, -, sister of Wm. Averall, yeoman of Asheldham; 1562, reference 9/8.

Just in case you have overlooked the out-of-the-way single entry in my Wills at Chelmsford, 1400-1620 (Brit.Rec.Soc., 1958), p.338:-
PUTTYPOLE, John, copperer, Burnham, dated 1539 (ref. 48 BW 28); if new to you, I will gladly make an abstract for you, as it is earlier than our Essex Wills period.

Yours sincerely

F.G. Emmison

INTRODUCTION.

"A Fine (Finis, or Finalis Concordia), so called from the words with which it begins, and also from its effect in putting a final end to all suits and contentions, was an amicable agreement or composition of a suit, whether real or fictitious, made between the parties with the consent of the judges, and enrolled among the records of the Court in which the suit was commenced.... Fines no doubt originated in actual suits for recovering the possession of lands and other hereditaments, the possession thus gained being found so sure and effectual that fictitious actions were soon introduced for the sake of obtaining the same security."[1]

Many lawyers and antiquaries have treated learnedly on this subject, from Glanvill and Bracton down to Professors Pollock and Maitland in their "History of English Law before Edward I." Coke and Blackstone alleged that Fines were in existence "before the Norman Conquest," but Cruise and Hunter gave reasons for doubting whether they could have been in use before 1130. The earliest Fine now preserved in the Public Record Office is dated 1st December, 1182, and this happens to relate partly to Essex. Mr. Round has discovered, in cartularies and other manuscripts, copies of a dozen or more Fines of earlier dates,[2] but even these do not carry us back further than the latter part of Henry II.'s reign, i.e. 1175—1180. They may, however, have originated previously, for it was not till the 15th July, 1195, that the King's Court began systematically to preserve a triplicate of every Final Concord made before the Justices. This important fact is derived from an endorsement on a Fine, quoted in the "History of English Law." From that date three copies of each Fine were made upon one piece of parchment, which was then cut into three portions. One copy, called the "Chirograph" or "Foot" of the Fine, was retained among the records of the Court, and the other two copies, called "Indentures," were delivered to the respective parties.[3] The upper margin of the "Foot" is indented, and in the indentations are visible portions of the word "Cirographum," written in large capital letters wide apart, while the other corresponding portions of the same word would appear partly on the left side of one Indenture, partly on that of the other; but very few early Indentures are extant. One of the Essex Fines is indented on two sides.

The most important effects of a Fine were:—1. the barring of any claim by a stranger, unless the claim were "put in" within a year and a day; 2. the barring of all claims by the issue-in-tail of the grantor immediately; 3. the binding of married women who were parties, so that they could claim no dower from the property thus settled.[4]

Although the Fines are mostly very brief and terse documents, written on small pieces of parchment, they contain sundry formal clauses, which are either abridged or omitted altogether in these abstracts, as will be explained in the following paragraphs.

Each Fine begins with the words, "This is the Final Concord," or "Agreement," as it is translated in modern Fines. Then it is stated that it was made in "the King's Court," usually held at Westminster "before" the King's Justices and others of the King's "Barons" or "faithful people" then and there present; but the word "Barons" fell into disuse at the beginning of John's reign. In early times the King's Court was frequently held elsewhere, and in numerous instances the Fine was "levied"[1] before the King's Justices in Eyre at the assizes; but the word "Itinerant" is not always expressed. Thus many of the Essex Fines were made at St. Bride's (in Fleet Street) London, the Old Temple, Bermondsey, Winchester, York, Stratford, Chelmsford, and other places.

When the Fine was levied at Westminster, the fact is not noticed here, nor are the names of the Justices given, as a rule; but when the King himself was present, or when archbishops, bishops, or other notable personages were sitting on the bench, notice is taken of the circumstance. It will be seen that one Fine was made in the Court of the Exchequer; others made in that Court have been noticed by Mr. Round. After the Court of Common Pleas was finally established, all Fines were made and recorded in that court alone.

With regard to the date of the Fine, which is either in the "octave," "quinzaine," "three weeks," "month," or "five weeks" of one of the four law-terms, or on a Saint's day, or on some week-day preceding or following a Saint's day, it would on the one hand take up too much space to give these dates in full, and on the other hand it would involve too much calculation—often doubtful[2]—to fix the precise day. Consequently, when the date given clearly occurred within one of the four terms, the name of that term only is indicated. When the Fine took place at the assizes, the precise day is given. In some cases Fines were levied on Sunday. It will be useful here to set out the limits of the respective law-terms.

Hilary term began 23rd or 24th January, and ended 12th or 13th February.

Easter term began some day between 8th April and 12th May, and ended some day between 4th May and 7th June.

Trinity term, until 1541, began some day between 27th May and 30th June, and ended some day between 17th June and 21st July. After 1541, it began five days and ended seven days earlier.

Michaelmas term, until 1641, began 9th or 10th October, and ended 28th or 29th November. After 1641, it began on 23rd or 24th October. After 1752, it began on 6th or 7th November.[3]

After these formal preliminaries, the names of the parties are stated. The real or pretended litigants are usually distinguished as "plaintiff" (querens) and "deforciant" (deforcians); but in the early Fines they are described as "demandant" (petens) and "tenant" (tenens). In some few instances the latter party is termed "impedient" (impediens). Where a wife was made a party, she was frequently not present in Court, having previously appointed her husband to act as her attorney; but the word "attorney" is seldom used in this class of records. Even when a wife was present, it is never stated that she was separately questioned as to her consent, as was the practice in manorial courts; yet it is said that such examination took place, though it was not material to the validity of the Fine.

Next follow the parcels, introduced by the single word de (concerning), setting forth in concise terms the land, tenement, rent, service, advowson, dower, marriage-settlement, debt, or whatever else may be the matter in dispute. Then the nature of the action, real or fictitious, is briefly mentioned. Generally in the early Fines it is said to be simply a "plea" (placitum), and this is not noticed in the abstract; but occasionally it is described as "a grand assize," "a recognition" or "an assize"

[1] The Fine was rather said "to levy" than "to be levied," but the passive form is now more commonly used.

[2] Thus Fine No. 29, Ric. I., is assigned to "3 Jan." in the Pipe Roll Series, vol. 20, p. 77, because it is said to have been made "in the Octave of St. John," who is assumed to have been "the Evangelist" (27th December); but more probably "the Baptist" (24th June) is intended. It is moreover doubtful whether the octave, quinzaine, &c. of a feast should be referred to any particular day, as is here done; the first week, second week, &c., following, rather seem to be intended.

[3] See Bond's Handy-Book for Verifying Dates. Easter and Trinity terms are regulated by the fall of Easter Day. Mr. Bond says that the commencement of Trinity term was affected by the establishment of Corpus Christi Day in 1264, but this does not appear to be the case, as the term had always begun on the tenth day after Trinity Sunday. Nicolas's Chronology states that Trinity term began on any day between 24th May and 27th June, and ended on any day between 8th June and 13th July; but this is erroneous. Bond in his text likewise states that Trinity term lasted only fifteen days (p. 175), but it really extended to twenty-two days until 1541, when it was reduced to twenty days. Each term nominally began on the Octave or eighth day of the feast from which it took its name, but the "full term" did not begin till "the fourth day" after the Octave. (Compare Tomlin, under the head of Terms.)

of mort d'ancestre, or of last presentation, or as "a plea of covenant," or "a plea of warranty of charter," &c. A "recognition" was a jury of recognitors, who were personally acquainted with the facts of the case, and whose verdict was to be obtained and recorded; it occurs only in the earlier records. The various kinds of actions are said to have been "summoned between" the parties, who, it is left to be inferred, had come to a settlement before the day of trial.

Then follow the covenants of the concord or agreement, which in the early Fines vary considerably. In many cases it is first of all stated that one party, known to lawyers as the "conusor," acknowledges the right of the other party, the "conusee," and this merely formal statement is mostly omitted in the text. The "consusance" clears the way for the actual conveyance of the whole or part of the premises, which in early Fines is made by either the demandant or the tenant; or else one party "remised and quitclaimed" to the other "all his right and claim" to the property. Sometimes there is a complicated arrangement of give-and-take between them, which is detailed at length.

The conveyances and quitclaims are usually made by one party, on behalf of "himself and his heirs," to the other party, "and to his heirs and assigns for ever;" but to avoid reiteration the words here quoted are omitted from the text, except in some few entries at the beginning. Where the grant was intended only for the life of the grantee, or for a term of years, the fact is duly noted.

In the case of conveyances, some service or rent was mostly reserved by the grantor, either a payment in money, or some nominal rent, such as a soar-sparrow hawk, a pair of gilt spurs, a pair of gloves, a pound of cummin, a rose, a gillyflower, &c.; it was payable to him by the grantee, a new sub-tenure being often thus created which had not previously existed; but the creation of new tenures was forbidden by the statute of Quia emptores in 18 Edw. I.

Professors Pollock and Maitland write thus on the subject:—[1] "The terminology of Bracton's day and of yet earlier times neatly expresses the distinction between the service which the tenant owes to his immediate lord by reason of the bargain which exists between them, and the service which was incumbent on the tenement, whilst it was in the lord's hand. The former is intrinsec service, the latter forinsec service; the former is the service which is created by, which (as ii were) arises within the bargain between the two persons, A and B, whose rights and duties we are discussing; the latter arises outside that bargain, is 'foreign' to that bargain; nothing that the bargainers do will shift it from the land, though as between themselves they can decide about its incidence."

But in translating the public records it is well recognised that we must always beware of adopting the terminology of legal treatises, ancient or modern. Here we have an instance in point. The term "intrinsec service" is never found in the Fines, and seldom if ever in other records; while "forinsec service" is an awkward substitute for the well known term "foreign service," which is the proper rendering of "forinsecum servitium."[2]

Instead of "intrinsec service" we find the rent reserved constantly described as "free service" in these records; and in this connexion it may be remarked that Fines are exclusively conveyances of manors and freeholds, as no Fine could pass between villains and bondmen, or customary tenants, whose lands afterwards became known as copyholds, though they and their lands might be comprised in conveyances made by their lords. Their presence at such conveyances is sometimes recorded.

The service or rent thus reserved is usually expressed to be the equivalent "for all service, saving foreign service." This means that the grantor had held his freehold under the King or other "chief lord of the fee," on condition of rendering certain services, which the grantee undertakes to render in future, in addition to the service or rent newly created. Sometimes, however, the grantor still undertakes to perform such services, or part of them. The term "foreign service" implies either that it was due to an external lord, or that it was to be performed outside the township in which the property was situate.

[1] History of English Laws, i., 216, 217.

[2] In the same manner we meet with "foreign manor," "foreign wood" (see an early English instance of this in Fine No. 22, Ric. I.), "foreign plea," "foreign attachment," &c. "Foreigners" were inhabitants of cities and boroughs who were not freemen.

There were several kinds of "foreign service," the chief of which was military or knight service, or the payment of scutage in lieu thereof; and although this is sometimes called "royal service," it was not, except in the case of a Crown manor, rendered by the freeholder directly to the King, but to the lord of the manor, who held his land by military tenure, either of the King or of some great baron. Other kinds of "foreign service" were suit of the county court, suit of the hundred court, and suit of the manor court. The first two of these courts would be held at a greater or less distance from the freehold, and even as to the third, the freehold was in many cases situate in one township while the manor court was held in another.[1] Hence it is that "foreign service" does not always indicate military tenure; nor does it imply service out of the realm.

Any money-rent reserved was generally payable at two or four terms of the year, but in a few cases at six terms, sometimes in equal, sometimes in unequal portions. Other rents were payable at one certain time of the year. The four principal terms were Christmas, Easter (instead of Lady Day, as now), the Nativity of St. John the Baptist (Midsummer), and Michaelmas. The times of payment and the instalments payable are not given in the abstracts, as they would occupy much space, without affording any useful information.

If the party benefited paid any sum of money for the grant or quitclaim, the the amount is stated in the last clause, and is shortly described in the abstract as "consideration," but this word is not actually used in the Fine. The money thus paid is sometimes described as "of the Easterlings," which is here contracted to "sterling,"

The name of the county in which the premises were situate is stated in the lower margin of the Fine. If they were in more than one county, the names of all the counties are given, and the Fine is now arranged in the separate series known as "Divers Counties." In a number of early Fines the county is not stated at all, and thus there is a third comparatively small series of Fines described as "Unknown Counties," from which a few Fines have been selected as evidently belonging to Essex.

If any person "put in" his claim within the time limited, the fact is recorded on the dorse of the Fine in this manner—"A. B. apponit clamium suum."

Fines gradually ceased to afford the pleasing variety which characterised them in early times, and in the end came to be drawn up in one or two set forms. In the more modern Fines the imaginary precedent action is almost invariably described as "a plea of covenant"; the parcels are stated in exaggerated quantities, usually in round numbers; there is no positive grant of the premises, but merely a remise or quitclaim by the deforciant to the plaintiff; no rent or service is reserved to the remisor; no provision is made for performing royal or other services; and there are no reciprocal adjustments between the parties. The object of the Fine was no longer apparent within its four corners, and it became necessary to draw up a separate Deed "to declare its uses"; while Deeds in general, which had originally been as terse and as small as Fines, grew to such an outrageous extent in the last century that it is no uncommon thing to meet with one consisting of twenty skins of parchment, some being more than double that length. In this respect Deeds present a great contrast to the Fines, which remained brief and small to the last.

From the reign of Edward IV. downwards, Fines were intimately associated with another form of conveyance known as "Recoveries," which set forth the proceedings in feigned actions at ridiculous length, but which were equally obscure as to the real nature of the settlement, and each of them required a Deed "to lead its uses." Both Fines and Recoveries were abolished by statute in 1834.

The earliest Fine abstracted has been printed both by Mr. Hunter and by the Pipe Roll Society, the former reading the date as "xxv . . . ," and the latter as "xxv[i] . . ," Henry II.; but Mr. Round has shown that it is enrolled on the Pipe Roll of 28 Henry II., where the date is clearly given as "xxviij."[2]

Will of John PUTTYPOLE 'copper' dwelling in Burnham, county of Essex, 31 Henry VIII, in the year 1539. To be buried in Burnham churchyard next to the sepulture of my first wife, my child lately departed. To 'Margitt' my wife my house that I dwell in called Kinges and my land belonging for 12 years after my decease, then to Edward & William my two sons to be divided part & part like equally. To Edward and William each 40 shillings, a featherbed, a bolster, 10 sheep and a cow, each at 21. To each of my daughters £5, a mattress, a bolster, a coverlet, a brass pot, 2 platters, a pewter dish a candlestick [and] 10s. at 20.

To 'Margitt' my wife a house called Dobarnes lying in the lane to give and to sell and to do her best therewith for her most profit. To her a tenement over the way called Skottes (212) otherwise Mogardes for her life; after her decease, to the child that she is withal if a manchild and if a womanchild to Edward and William equally after their mother's decease. The rest of my goods to my wife, whom I make executrix, and John Nele my brother [-in-law] the other executor to help her prove this will, he to have for his labour 6s. 8d. I make Richard Kynge overseer, & for his labour 6s. 8d. Witnesses - Roger Pallm[er], John Semy, Robert Wright, John Fowle, Richard Ada Richard Bynd[er].

Dear Dr Hartshough,

In response to your letter of 17 June, I went to my old Office yesterday and made an abstract of the Will of John Puttypole, which I give above. The occupation of is very rare, does not occur in the Oxford Dict. until 1827, and is probably wrong. The had is not illiterate and is quite clearly what I have transcribed, i.e. the normal '-er' is added. But carefully further reading shows that the scribe uses a final twirl unnecessarily now and again, so that there is now no doubt in my mind that I ought to have copied it as 'copper', i.e. for cooper.

Yours sincerely

F G Emmison
